incidents of physical restraint and seclusion, the total number of students involved in the incidents, and the number of students with disabilities who were involved in the incidents. The report to the school board contains the same data as required in the U.S. Department Office of Civil Rights Cyclical Data Collection (CRDC) on physical restraint and seclusion.

Districts are required to report on two (2) types of restraint: mechanical and physical, and seclusion, detailing both the number of students (by disability status) and number of incidents. For example, the use of handcuffs by police officers would constitute a mechanical restraint and schools are required to fully document identified instances. Both a summary report and a full building level report are attached. For the 2015-16 school year, KUSD had 1 report of a mechanical restraint, 89 students who had a total of 233 incidents of physical restraint, and 72 students who had a total of 249 incidents of seclusion. The recent trends still demonstrate an overall increase in incidents, but not as high an increase rate over the previous period. The factors that contribute to these increases can be traced to the continued and prolonged efforts to properly train and record these accurately and appropriately. The Chief of Special Education and Pupil Services practices proper accountability by reviewing each documented report with respective follow-up on a case by cases basis.

This report is for informational purposes only.”
